

Search...

After a long wait, work starts at Dyckman Marina

Community News

Written by Daniel P. Bader

Wednesday, October 20, 2010

Access

Blocked -

“We’re just so fortunate that we have a team that fit the Parks Department’s vision for the community,” said Northern Parks Administrator Jennifer Hoppa. She said the marina would go far in attracting interest from downtown.

was blocked.

When the Hudson River Group, a lawyer, marina expert and a chef, won the contract to redevelop the Dyckman Marina they thought by this time they’d be finishing their second season in business. They were wrong.

“All kind of naive,”
“I’ve made a lot of
“It has meant a lot

Tenebaum said he hopes to contract out kayak rentals, sailing instruction and rentals to engage local residents and keep the waterfront open to the public.

But on Wed., Oct. 20, with his toddler son, Julius, dragging a shovel of his own, Tenebaum and his partners, Josh Rosen and Chris Villano turned over the first ceremonial spade of soil, kicking off the project.